ATTORNEYS HAVE GREAT TIME WITH MEXICANS

Judge George Batterton and the attorneys in the County Court, Wednesday, had a fine time examining Mexican witnesses summoned to testify in an action brought against Shelton Irvine by their employers, the Mason-Hanger Construction Co. Shelton is in the service of the Louisville & Nashville railroad at this point, having charge of a large number of men engaged in railroad construction and repair work along the line. He was haled into court on a charge of attempting to entice away Mexican laborers employed on construction work on the Simms farm, near Paris, where Mason-Hanger Co. have large contracts. About seven hundred Mexicans are now employed in this work on the Simms farm, for which they are receiving $3.00 per day and board. It was claimed in the warrants that Shelton had endeavored to persuade the men to enter his employ elsewhere, which, under the statutes, is a criminal offense.

Great difficulty was experienced by the attorneys in examining the witnesses. Being Mexicans they could "no sabe" English, and the only answers evoked in response to the questions put to them by the attorneys was "Me no spake de Anglishe." Various means and various languages were restored to, but no results were obtained until the official interpreter was brought in from the Simms farm, then the matter was straightened out. The attorneys engaged in the case were E. M. Dickson, representing Irvine, and County Attorney D. D. Cline and former County Attorney Denis Dundon the prosecution, and the Mason-Hanger Company.

During the progress of the examination of one of the witnesses, Attorney Dickson asked a question to which the reply sounded like a man with a mouth full of hair pins. "Your Honor," said Mr. Dickson, "I can't hear what the witness is saying." "Well, Mr. Dickson," replied the Court, "I can hear what he says, but I certainly can't understand it."

PARIS COMMERCIAL CLUB MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

The campaign for a real, live Commercial Club in Paris, to be launched Thursday, July 22, with a one-day whirlwind drive, will be the first organized effort to secure a commercial body in this city modeled after the leading Chambers of Commerce of the country and operated under the department plan adopted a few years ago.

The department plan is nothing more or less than a means of distributing the work of the organization among the members in a way that fixes responsibility and insures results that can not be had by haphazard plan of operation.

The new Paris Commercial Club will have three departments to handle the work—the department of Organization Affairs, the department of Public Affairs and the department of Business Affairs. Each department will have charge of a particular line of work, to be apportioned among the committees which are appointed to stand for one year.

There will be four committees in each department. Under the department of Organization Affairs will be committees on Membership, Events, Finances and Publicity. The four committees under the department of Public Affairs will be Welfare, Legislation, Agriculture and Highways. The department of Business Affairs will have four committees on Industries, Transportation, Retail Development and Preventable Abuses.

The scope of the duties outlined for the committees in the three departments furnishes an idea of the usefulness of the organization under such a plan and the possibilities along lines of civic endeavor. The duties prescribed for the various committees are as follows:

Membership—Get new members, look after headquarters needs and get members better acquainted.

Events—Act as entertainment committee and handle special events within the organization as well as outside events, including visits of delegations, conventions and celebrations.

Finances—Look after the finances of the organization and be responsible for a proper accounting of the funds.

Publicity—See that the work of the various departments and committees is given publicity. Prepare information about Paris and Bourbon county for leaflet to be used in advertising the community to the outside world. Plan advertising campaign to attract outside attention to special advantages and resources of the city and county.

Welfare—Awaken public sentiment to the need for civic betterment, improved sanitary conditions, "Clean-Up and Paint-Up Week," better streets and sidewalks, schools and parks and playgrounds. Assist welfare and charitable organizations, Boy Scout movement, etc.

Legislation—Look after needed legislation, city and county, and cooperate with other organizations in securing good State and National legislation.

Agricultural—Work for better roads, better relations between city and county, better live stock and agriculture.

Highways—More and better highways in the county.

Industrial—Endeavor to secure desirable industries. Prepare data on availability of raw materials, transportation facilities and rates, train schedules, etc.

Retail—Plan various selling events, conduct credit-rating bureau, abolish unworthy solicitation, discourage cut-throat competition and encourage co-operation among merchants, adopt uniform closing hours.

Preventable Abuses—Handle complaints and correct abuses of various kinds.

EDWARD NOLD CURED OF PARALYSIS.

Is Stricken Accidentally. In The Back By a Bedpost That Revived a Nerve

SENSATION LED TO A CURE

In the home of Edward M. Nold there is a bedpost. Many other homes have bedposts—four, at least, and some several times four—but the Nold bedpost had a message to deliver, a message of life-saving importance. It ought to have a Carnegie medal, that bedpost.

Edward M. Nold was injured in the service of the United States Army in April, 1917. The injury left him paralyzed from the waist down. All the army doctors available or interested, tried to help him. Eight different operations were performed. But none of the operations were of any benefit.

As Nold lay helpless he thought of many things he wanted to do and couldn't. He wanted to study music. Having the talent, he wished to express it and get the joy that comes with the exercise of such skill. Also he wanted the normal joys of life, such, for instance, as being able to walk in the sun.

But instead of these things he got a wheel chair and his discharge from the Army. For encouragement, the doctors told him the truth. They had kept it from him as long as they could.

"Your case is incurable," pronounced the physicians, and so he was shipped from the hospital to his home in Sedalia, Mo.

Thus things drifted along from the date of his injury in April, 1917, to October 7, 1919. It was on the latter date that the bedpost took a hand. On that date, because he was helpless, he suffered a fall. The bedpost struck him in the back.

Now, to strike in the back is a social blunder, but the bedpost knew nothing of this and if asked to defend itself would undoubtedly have retorted: "Look what I did for him."

Getting struck in the back caused a sensation in one of Nold's toes. As he said, describing the incident, "It gave me hope."

The reason for his hope was that he had heard of chiropractic and he thought a chiropractor could at least do as well adjusting his spine as a bedpost.

The first adjustment brought a sensation in one hip. The second day it reached one foot. The third day it was in both hips. On the fourth day full sensation returned to both legs. In three weeks he began to walk. One month later he walked a mile with crutches. In six weeks he walked a mile without crutches. Today he is normal. Today he is in San Francisco studying music, with good prospect of achieving his ambition and his happiness.

The fall against the bedpost happened to strike the right joint of the spine in just the right way to give the pinched spinal nerve a little momentary freedom. Nold, as a result, felt a sensation in his toe. The chiropractor does by art and skill what the bedpost did by accident. But even the chiropractor could not have succeeded in Nold's case in one adjustment. He needed to continue the work of restoring nerves, muscles and ligaments to a normal position, day after day, for six weeks, before a complete adjustment of permanent value had been made. The bedpost opened the nerve line into the toe for an instant, then it closed again. But Nold got the message which fate intended for him and so today he is restored to usefulness.

This seems a wonderful case—but isn't it as simple as two and two make four. Today many people are going through life with some part of the body only half alive—a part that is diseased because it is failing to get 100 per cent. of impulse from spinal nerve lines. To such persons, the spinal adjustment is a God-send, a wonder worker. Yet it is only so because it brings back what Nature intended you to have—health, vigor, vitality, real nervous strength and force in every organ of the body.

NEW WHEAT POURING IN

With the wheat harvest well under way in Bourbon county, new wheat is pouring into the local mills and to other dealers. The wheat is said to be of excellent quality. The Paris Milling Company was paying the top price, $2.75 per bushel, for wheat delivered at their plant yesterday. The prices for new wheat has been steady at $2.65 for the first few days of delivery.

The acreage of wheat grown in Bourbon county has not been as large as in previous years. There will be a larger acreage devoted to raising of wheat in this county next year. Farmers are becoming gradually convinced of the necessity for raising more foodstuffs instead of tobacco.

SHIPS CAR LOAD OF CATTLE

W. A. Thomason, buyer for the Consolidated Dressed Beef Co., has shipped out five hundred head of cattle, weighing from 1,200 to 1,500 pounds, for which he paid Bourbon county farmers from fourteen to sixteen cents a pound. The cattle were shipped to the Philadelphia market.

BROTHERS UNITED AFTER 31 YEARS.

After a separation of thirty-one years, during which time neither knew of the other's whereabouts, Mr. John L. Day, of Paris, and his younger brother, Wm. H. Day, of Cheyenne, Wyoming, met in this city, their first meeting in all those years. The reunion was a most affecting one, the brothers, in their joy at seeing each other after so long a separation, manifesting deep emotion.

The younger Day left the old home in May, 1889, stating that he was going into the far West to make his future home, but did not know just where he would land ultimately. He spent part of the time in Missouri, in Colorado, and finally located in Cheyenne, where he has resided for many years, having been engaged in ranching near that Western city. He was heard from at infrequent intervals and in an indirect manner, but not until he came to Paris unheralded Wednesday did his brother know just where he had located. Mr. Day will be a guest of relatives in this county for some time, and will renew the friendships of thirty-one years ago, which were interrupted by his departure to the West.
